A Very Happy Birthday To All!

Members are asked to bring a wrapped gift to the club meeting for the month of their Birthday. The gifts go to the winners of the Sunshine Drawings. Sunshine funds raised are used to purchase cards, flowers, or other expressions of care and concern for club members who need support and comfort.

Since we aren't having in-person meetings, we will catch up when we can meet in-person and bring gifts for all the missed months.

A Word from Our President

The Zoom general meeting on May 19 was fun. We had 61 in attendance. When we can't meet in person, this is a great alternative. Thanks to the Technology Committee for making this available to us.

You know how out of nowhere a word pops into your head? I was thinking about the club and our members and the word RESILIENCE came to mind. I looked up the basic definition and it is "the capacity to recover quickly from difficulties; toughness." Okay, that fits us. But there's more. According to Psychology Today:

"Psychologists define resilience as the process of adapting well in the face of adversity, trauma, tragedy, threats or significant sources of stress ..... Resilience is the psychological quality that allows some people to be knocked down by the adversities of life and come back at least as strong as before. Rather than letting difficulties, traumatic events, or failure overcome them and drain their resolve, highly resilient people find a way to change course, emotionally heal, and continue moving toward their goals."

I challenge each of you, including myself, to strive to be resilient. We've all seen our dogs do it, whether it's coming back from surgery and recovering much faster than a human would; or wiping out in the wet grass chasing another dog (or squirrel) and bouncing right back up without a care. Now it's our turn. Life is not going to go back to what it was 3 months ago any time soon, or maybe ever. But we have to move on, to change course, to heal, to set new goals and to figure out a new path to reach those goals. And nowhere does it say you have to do this by yourself.

Be strong, be resilient, and reach out to others—that brings another word to mind:

SYNERGY.  $1 + 1 > 2$

Your President,

Shari Price

From the Training Director's Corner

I am Pam White and can usually be found at DTCDC on Thursday afternoons in the Beginner and Intermediate classes instructing or assisting. My husband and I have a Boarding and Training facility and have bred, trained and competed with working and herding breeds (German Shepherds, Dobermans, Rottweilers, Giant Schnauzers, Bouvier des Flandres, and Belgian Malinois and Tervurens) for over 40 years. Most of my dogs are ones which have found themselves in bad situations (lack of training or socialization, owner's busy schedules, or situations beyond their own control) and generally need a "Job" to keep them busy.

I enjoy a variety of dog sports with my dogs including agility, dock jumping, tracking and tricks. But I feel that a good foundation in obedience is essential to the bonding process and the formation of the teamwork between a dog and handler. That is why I enjoy the Beginner classes so much. I love seeing the dog and handler start to "click" as a team, the glitter in the eye when the association of a term is understood. And hopefully our classes will help these dogs be successful in all their endeavors.

I have been privileged to have participated on the Training Committee with our two previous training directors, Pam Chrystal and Jan Bajovich. I feel our current committee is faced with many new and different challenges trying to keep our members, their dogs and our students safe in an ever-changing life. I look forward to seeing everyone and resuming our "normal" training lives as soon as possible! Stay safe and hug your dogs!

Pam's great family of dogs are trying to keep busy (or not) during their break!

Feisty and energetic are two of the primary traits that come to mind for those who have experience with Terriers. In fact, many describe their distinct personalities as “eager for a spirited argument.” Bred to hunt, kill vermin and to guard their family’s home or barn; sizes range from fairly small, as in the Norfolk, Cairn or West Highland White Terrier, to the larger and grand Airedale Terrier. Prospective owners should know that terriers make great pets, but they do require determination on the part of the owner because they can be stubborn; have high energy levels and require special grooming (known as “stripping”) to maintain a characteristic appearance.

My experiences with terriers

By Mim Aiken

My first Terrier was a 14 inch Toy Fox Terrier (AKC) Rat Terrier (UKC) named Little Texas Screamer, call name Tex. I will never forget when I first took him into a class that I was part of as a puppy. "What have you got there?" the members asked "A little terrier," I answered. A look of consternation came over several faces. "You do realize terriers are very hard to train?" Several voices called out "and they tend to work individually or in a pack not usually with a handler." I smiled and went back out to get my Rottie Py who was in the class. That was October 2000 and by the time Tex passed away in December 2016 he had earned 52 titles from AKC, UKC, ASCA, UFLI, NAFA, and NADAC in Obedience, Rally, Flyball, Tracking, and Agility. The titles that I am most proud of that this boy earned was the 3 Utility Dog Titles 1 each from AKC, UKC and ASCA. He taught me a lot about dog training and dogs in general and I miss him terribly.

I loved terriers because of Tex and had several since and currently I have Toby who is a Teddy Roosevelt Terrier (UKC) and is FSS in AKC, and Rival who is a Rat Terrier. Toby does Nosework and we have been practicing during the COVID-19 lock down.

Toby is a wiz at Nosework. He loves it and so do I.

The terrier that isn't a terrier

by Jan Bajovich

Chloe as the cotton pickin' dog

Kelly working on his Elite Nosework title.

Although the AKC and UKC in the U.S. assign the Miniature Schnauzer to the Terrier group, they actually have no terrier blood in them.

Minatures were bred in Germany independent from terriers who were mainly bred in Great Britain. The original schnauzer, the Standard, was bred to the Affenpinscher to create the smaller Miniature, keeping the beard and hard coat and the original all-around farm dog qualities including hunting vermin and guarding the farm and livestock. (Guarding? A mini? Trust me, minis do not know they are small and will guard as fiercely as a large dog.)

The breed standards describe the miniature schnauzer as robust and active as you would expect from a farm dog, running the fields all day, hunting rats in the barns, and barking at visitors. Of course, as pets they mostly just bark out the windows at the neighbors.

Typically, minis are friendly, loving to greet people. My first mini, Chloe, was a therapy dog and was especially drawn to older women.

Minis are intelligent. Within a year of coming to me, my Kelly went from untrained wildman to earning rally obedience titles and has participated in various obedience, nosework, barn hunt and other sports with a total now of 55 titles and certificates. My puppy, Coal, has some big shoes to fill!

The puppy, Coal, is from a prominent miniature schnauzer breeder, Sonny Lelle. He is Southcross River of Fire and Ice from two Grand Champions, GCH CH Southcross Country Road BN RI "Roady" and GCH CH Southcross Boogie Shoes "Fever." Again, he has big shoes to fill as he grows up. Right now he is just playing as a puppy with Kelly and his cat sister, Zoe, and learning his manners. His biggest challenge is learning the cue "Quiet".

Miniature schnauzers, terrier or not, are a popular pet breed. People like their lively personalities, their antics, their desire to please and work with their human handlers. They just always want to be with their owners, even in their laps and on their beds. Biggest downfall is their barkiness and their tendency to follow you EVERYWHERE. You will never potty or shower alone again. Three thumbs up for the terrier that isn't a terrier.

To a schnauzer owner, no puppy is a cute as a schnauzer puppy. Coal Bajovich is seen at left and at right...

"Now, son. I say, this is how it's done," said Jackson (who owns Lisa Wharton) to Jan Bajovich's puppy Coal, who just happens to be his cousin!

Biewer Yorkshire Terrier

By Kay Mashburn

This is Winslow our Biewer Yorkshire Terrier a la Pom Pom. Yorkies were first utilized to help control vermin in manufacturing buildings in England. Fortunately, we do not have a rat problem, but Winslow is adept at treeing squirrels, cornering an opossum, and scaring off a skunk. Mostly, he excels at being a snuggle buddy and watching dog shows! Oh, and he is quite a fearsome watchdog.

Cairn Terrier

By Becky Hill

Tipper and Smokey at the park last week. (Left, top) Tipper will be 12 years old in August. Smokey turned two in May.

The girls have been a bit lazy during the shelter in place. They have been hanging around the backyard chasing squirrel's and just digging up the place! Smokey is showing signs of boredom now. I believe the rest has served her and me well. She is now eager to start up her classes again!!! She even shows interest in doing homework! Tipper on the other hand has been there done that and is satisfied with her daily routine.

(Left) This is Smokey in the backyard at her dig pit. She loves to dig, dig and dig!

Smokey loves nose work and delights in learning tricks! She is fast on her feet and still has not caught that squirrel!

Airedale Terrier

By Pam White

The first breed listed in the Terrier Group is the Airedale Terrier, which is nicknamed "The King of Terriers." They are a versatile, athletic and courageous dog which lends them well to many dog sports. As a member and trainer for Texas Airedale Rescue Team I have come in contact with this wonderful breed. My dog, Leia, is pictured when she completed her Beginner Obedience class, just stretching her legs, and playing with bunny, who accompanies us with kennel chores.

Here are Gunner, Springer, Hannah (with some winnings) and Mercy enjoying agility.

COPING WITH QUARANTINE

This is Kay Mashburn's dog, Dulce a Goldendoodle, catching a Frisbee. She has provided hours of entertainment during their shelter at home. Kay says Dulce prefers playing catch with her squeaky ball, and we allow her to choose, out of the box, which toy she uses. Life has not been boring with the Doodle Boo around!

Lynda Holman says, "During our "Stay Home and Stay Safe" time, Duncan and Kate have been using their doggy telepathy to command their humans to play fetch and tug."

Personal insights and reflections on shelter in place and COVID-19

By Jan Hitchborn

I use the term reflections as I feel this has been a time granting a lot of inward thinking and possibly reorganizing priorities going forward. I believe a lot of people have been doing this. I also realize many may have been simply marking time until restrictions relaxed and they may return to their new normal in whatever format it will be.

I had already decided 2020 would be a year in which I would not be on the run so much, cut back and be more selective on trials to enter and classes to take and/or teach. It had been four plus years since my husband's passing and my home was now my home. I was wanting to get to know the me I now was.

I had been getting a little bit of push back and then COVID-19 happened. I saw the writing on the wall early in March. Not realizing and not contemplating a stay at home order would eventually follow, I started preparing personally to cut back on areas with a lot of personal interaction. Early March I had my nails redone to regular manicure and cut down so that I would be able to do them myself for a while. I made trips to my various stores for my different frozen meals and yogurts as well as various can goods. I had a new disinfectant wipes container bought in February and never gave it another thought and had not gotten around to new bottle of hand sanitizer. Mistakes. HUGE as the saying goes. Normally I never bought more TP or paper towels than I needed week to week and again they were not on my radar. Got thru all that by stumbling on just delivered hand sanitizer when out for one of those early frozen food stops. Son loaned me a couple TP rolls and found some cheap paper towels on last in store shopping late March. Then thanks to a club member and her Costco trip I have plenty of both. Not because I hoard, but Costco only has bulk. I have given away to neighbors as they need.

Then shelter in place and things being shut down. Curbside pick-up shopping started up and I will continue it for some time. Discovered Callaway's in Mansfield did curbside pick up and after a great talk on the phone, they walked the whole nursery, put plants on cart, called me back to say had everything, paid over phone and drove over and all was loaded in the van without my ever leaving it. As I know what does and does not grow and thrive in my yard and being a great fan of the color red, I knew what I wanted. I furloughed my cleaning lady mid-March, but she has been with me for 13 years and I continue to pay her every other week but do the cleaning myself. After a couple weeks, realizing all she does, I gave her a long overdue raise. My pool man and yardman have all learned to call and text so much more than before and they continue weekly, but I set money out for them.

The real downside has been not seeing my granddaughters on a weekly basis, taking and picking up from school, and then my son decided to sell their home in early March and relocate to Waxahachie to be closer to work in future for him and his wife. The move was made; the house sold. Because of all the outside contact my son had to have, we decided to just social distance ourselves. He has also kept his girls away from everything. We wave thru car windows or sunroofs and the closest I have been with them was the Blue Angels show over Charlton Hospital. I wore a mask and we were parked next to each other, our own little group. The dogs were in van in crates and so glad to see the girls. Mother's Day they drove up driveway to deliver a goodie and wave thru the sunroof of their SUV.

Now the dogs are whole new story. First, they were ready to go all the time but slowly they came to accept we train at home, that I am home all the time and a lot more couch snuggling in the evening. I started taking them just for van rides to keep them in a routine for in and out of the van. We go to drop a box at the post office, Logan rides shotgun most trips and they all have gone with me for grocery curbside pick up at HEB. They always put a smile on the delivery folks faces or should I say eyes as they are all in masks as am I. This past week the girl stepped back and asked me lots of questions on raising a dog. I gave her some advice and a club brochure, of course. She thanked me for taking the time to talk and to let her meet the dogs as I put up the back of van while I stayed inside van. At the air show with the Blue Angels an older couple had driven up at the end and wanted to see the dogs before I put the back down. They stayed in their car and just talked about all the dogs they had in the past and their smiles grew larger and larger. So even though we are not doing nursing homes or hospitals or reading programs, my crew are bringing smiles to all who see them on these outings.

During this time I have discovered if I stop and think about something needing a fix or repair, think about all the tools my husband collected and I have sorted thru, I figure out how to do these things.

But my biggest discoveries have been those about my individual dogs' different personalities and what especially makes their eyes light up. The biggest change has been in Maggie who has burst out of her shell as regards our personal relationship. She always stayed in the shadows to the other two. She now will jump into my lap when I am on the couch when I call her even if another dog is next to me. She has even jumped up and sat on Logan's head to look me in the eye and share a special look and grin to then put her head on my shoulder. Logan being Logan just stayed as he was! Part of her new confidence has been my coming down on Skye a lot for the bullying she has always done towards Maggie. Now with time and not rushing everywhere, I have been watching and correcting and Maggie has now learned to tell Skye to back off. I finally have the time to train the outside barking issue that Skye has insisted on doing to the others. She now stops to look at me as they go out as if to say, "Ok, I got it". She is learning there is play and there is just plain bullying and that the bullying is not acceptable. It is a work in progress and there have been a few times, she has been taken back inside to her crate to miss out on the fun.

In training, I see what fires up each dog. In reality Skye is my all round dog, but that is because I put in the time at first with her on obedience and rally before starting nose-work. Maggie likes rally ok. Logan is happy to do anything that is with me and involves treats! All of them get really fired up by nosework and I do lots of drills and fun exercises. They all work obedience and rally in my garage and Maggie and Logan have learned the concept of over a jump and back on command. Maggie has a sometime aversion to the backyard at night and has learned if she potties, she will get frisbee time. Logan of course figured this out and yes, even if he does not have to go, he will do two drops last time out as he knows he gets bumper throw time. This is in the evening only and the rest of the day they do not ask or look for this. All in all, it is about spending time with me and so we have restarted working on tricks for their AKC Advance titles. I am proud they each give the other the space to be one on one with me.

Logan, Maggie and Skye pose on the stairs in their home with a Sunday Today show mug. They were one of the featured photos one Sunday in early March.

I have been thinking of a new pup over the last three years, but timing never seemed right with running here and there. I got close all three years only to decide no. Logan is suddenly 7 ½ and the girls turn seven and six this July. Time has flown since Jim's death and they are a big part of the reason we got thru it. With them, I have traveled and competed in obedience, rally and nosework earning titles I never dreamed my dogs would earn. We have our daily routine down now, but routines that stretch out over time not changing, can become monotonous. So when facing what looks to be a longer time at home stretching into early 2021, I decided the time was now to add a new family member so that my crew can help train him just as my golden crew in the past trained them. I am going back to my beginnings in larger dogs and to the breed that stole my heart some 38 years ago, a Golden. I am not looking for a performance dog but mainly a new member of the family as my crew ages as I surely will. I was referred to a gent who raises English Cream Golden Retrievers and know folks with his dogs. Almost got one of his last year. I was lucky he had recently had a litter a short while before I called to see puppy status.

I started this piece a few weeks ago and now stay at home restrictions are starting to be relaxed, but I am overly cautious, and the next few weeks will tell how the reopening of our country is working. The Fall remains a mystery still. During this time, I have found quiet pleasure in not dashing around. My son and family came to swim Saturday of Memorial Day weekend along with their pup and the dogs all had a great time seeing everyone and each other.

It was good to have laughing voices in my backyard. We did not hug and most of the time stayed six feet apart. Katelyn and Haylee are over the moon excited that a puppy will be here soon as Kate was still dog leery and Haylee a baby when Logan and the Aussie girls joined the pack. They are so far beyond this now that my one main regret right now is that Jim did not live to see the girls dog crazy. As for competing the rest of 2020, I have basically decided to do local nosework trials with Logan and Skye for now where good access and crating of even outdoor in vehicle crating allowed and enter only one element one dog each time working to complete a specific title. I am not sure I will ever have Maggie compete again. I truly do not think she enjoys it. Attend a class and our club SNGs yes, but trial no. I am not concerned my dogs will freak at seeing masks as they are comfortable to my wearing one and I think a mask is beneficial as they cannot see any stress of straight lips or frowns from me.

When we got our Golden boy Bogie, he made one dog too many so to speak and so Jim, an avid golfer, named him Bogie for one over! I look forward to you all meeting Rookie, our new kid on the block, soon. Benita and Robin have agreed to social distancing visits with their pups to help get him around other people and dogs. My granddaughters can't wait to child proof him. Having done this so many times in the past and recent past, I know some canine noses are going to be out of place for a while. I do hope you all have weathered the past three months without any or many hiccups. Stay safe and please remain very vigilant as you venture out and back into mainstream daily life.

Beloved rescue: Hunter

By Cathy Yahraus

Sadly, our beloved rescue dog Hunter passed over to the Rainbow Bridge on April 28, 2020. His heart just gave out after 13 yrs. He fought hard to stay with us. Hunter was the rescue dog David found at his hunting camp 3 1/2 yrs ago. With the help of many of our friends and club members he was treated for heartworms and brought back to being a healthy pup. He was a very kind and loveable dog. He bonded with our two German Shepherds and was always by David's side. We will miss him very much and he is in our hearts forever. I know he is running free with all the angels!

How To Train A Dog To Do The “Military Crawl”

This tutorial is part of The Ultimate List Of Dog Trick Ideas which contains 99 other tricks like this!

A dog that crawls along on his belly is easy to teach, even though this looks like a complicated trick.

1. Ask your dog to lie down and place a treat near the end of his nose.
2. Slowly move the treat away from him, so that he tries to follow it. It's important to begin teaching this really slowly as the one thing that you must avoid is your dog getting up from the position of laying down.
3. Even if your dog moves a tiny distance with his stomach completely on the ground then you can reinforce and reward this action. If he stands up then you are going too quickly and must begin again.
4. Gently increase the speed and distance of the dog's crawl then introduce the command word. Eventually increase the distance by asking your dog to wait in the down position taking a step away and holding a treat on the ground then use the command word to call him.

Top tip; if your dog gets up you have moved on too quickly, go back to the beginning and rebuild the trick

Dog trainers love this trick because it is simple to teach yet looks like a complicated behavior. The dog can then be taught to crawl under things, which is also an extremely cute trick.

Shannon Quinn shares:

After losing our senior pup Snickers April 26, we decided to open our hearts and home and welcomed home a new pup! Riley is our 3-month-old lab pup who is a little pistol! She has found her legs and has figured out how to jump up on our fireplace ledge and bed. I can't wait to start training her like big brother Bear.

We sure do miss our Snickers but know he will always be in our hearts.

A true hero: Bob Rodriguez.

Bob and Laurie Rodriguez were active members and instructors with DTCDC for many years. Although they have moved on to other interests in the world of dogs, you might like to know that Bob was recently asked by a panicky neighbor to assist with a choking child. Bob was able to perform the Heimlich procedure and dislodge a sucker, thereby saving this little girl's life who was already in distress. Without his fortitude and calmness, the results could have been much different. (See Laurie's Facebook post).
